

TREE RESTRAINT

Patent N° GB2290446B

- The restraints are quickly and easily secured to the tree and stake. All that is needed are a few staples.
- A single vertical stake is used which, due to the design of the restraint, does not interfere with the root ball of container grown trees.
- Clearance between the restraint ring and the tree, promotes natural growth responses to wind movement.
- A uniformity of post fixing height is created across a planting scheme.
- Virtually maintenance free with no need for expensive, (and often unpredictable) re-visits to the tree to adjust and sometimes refit straps.
- Designed to last throughout the tree establishment period with a robust weather resistant finish.

A challenging environment in Hackney. Planted in the autumn of 2005 using the Arbortech Tree Shield, Tree Restraint and Root Drencher for watering. Photographed in September 2006, this new planting has clearly coped with 2006 drought and stood up well to casual vandalism. PTO to see this planting 2 years on.
